

Africatown moving forward with vision for 23rd & Union

Posted by Staff / 12 - Feb - 2017

Africatown continues to advance vision for equitable development at 23rd & Union.

From Capitol Hill Blog

Echoing a framework for “inclusive development” forged across the street where Capitol Hill Housing’s affordable Liberty Bank Building is slated to rise, the developers behind a project planned to bring a seven-story, 400-plus-unit project to 23rd and Union’s Midtown Center say they are working on a deal with Central District community nonprofit Africatown that will give the organization an ownership stake in the project.

The planned deal “articulates a path forward and shared goals for inclusive redevelopment of the property” the companies say.

<http://www.capitolhillseattle.com/2016/12/shopping-center-developer-in-deal-to-buy-23union-block-with-africatown-as-partner/>