

@AfricatownSea Newspaper Launches at UMOJA Day of Unity

Posted by Africatown | 16 - Aug - 2021

UMOJA Day of Unity was another Africatown event for the memory books!

As the sun made a special appearance on what was forecast to be a grey and gloomy Saturday, the community came together for a gathering that continued the decades long summer tradition of joyous Black celebration in the Central District, featuring the annual parade, festival, community performances, childrens activities and 200 Black businesses at Jimi Hendrix Park.

This years event also brought

The 16 page publication made its print debut, with in-depth stories examining the regions history, community innovations, organizing successes and the people making their mark by building towards vision of a Seattle where Black people thrive now and into the future.

Pick up your copy today for everything from the latest updates on Africatown Community Land Trusts development projects to Seattles Black business renaissance in the midst of a pandemic and from the history of the first Africatown in Mobile, Alabama to the legacy of early Seattle pioneer and founder of Seattles historic Black neighborhood, William Grose.

@AfricatownSea is a publication full to the brim with news you can truly use, including a full page of discounts from local Black-owned businesses.

Dont wait get your copy today!